

| disassembly instruction statement

The disassembly instructions that are provided in this section of the website are intended to be used as a means of demonstrating general guidelines for disassembly and recycling options for products that are representative of the larger product lines. These units were selected as worst-case scenarios and provide hardware elements common to the other products within the series. Recycling classification by material type have been outlined on the documents, check with your local waste management provider for guidelines on availability of recycling or recycling options in your area.
